Episode 12: Party Wave

Well it's the weekend and the waves are nice so people come to visit. You'll see even more people during the summer

But on days like this, it's important to stay safe.

You have to be careful when there are people nearby, especially if they are about three meters away or less

Before you take off, always look to see what's ahead
And be sure to check both sides as well.

Do you remember the drop in rule I taught you before?

No...

One wave, one surfer!
It's not only proper etiquette but it's also an important safety rule

first priority
peak of the wave
The surfer riding closest to the peak of the wave has first priority.

first priority

When another surfer rides up next to him, it's called a drop in.

So be careful not to ride another person's wave.

Yes.

I'll try to remember that.

Udi!

Are you going to work hard today as well?
I don't work that hard
It's a wave that everyone can enjoy.

Everyone seems to be enjoying themselves.

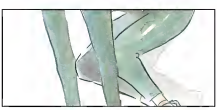
But I failed again.
It's okay Don't worry about it.
She's being a real bother.
If you're going to learn, do it somewhere else.
Why do you have to waste all the good waves?
We were here first. Didn't you notice that?
You should teach your student proper surf manners.
This is why nobody respects any of the locals.
What did you just say?

sfx. splash splash

Today is a party wave.

Doesn't it feel great?



Woah!

Now do you understand why surfing is an experience?
I do.

Then that's the end of your lessons.

Forget everything I taught you and from now on, experience the waves.

That feels a bit soon. I'm still new to this.

No, you're more than ready.

All I needed to do was find a wave for you and give some encouragement.
Now you have to learn to find your own waves.
sfx. rustle rustle
And experience everything on your own.

Here.

ahh, great
